

Editor's Note

AMJ 2024 17(12)

Editor's Note

Rick Steves

Managing Editor

Australasian Medical Journal

E-mail: medicalsci@medicineinsights.com

Dear Readers,

Season's Best to You and Your Loved Ones!

We are excited to present the twelfth issue of AMJ for 2024, featuring a diverse selection of original research papers, case studies, and review articles. This edition also showcases significant contributions made throughout the year.

We sincerely thank our readers for their continued support and interest in AMJ. Maintaining a rigorous review process and high standards of quality remains our top priority. Special thanks go to the dedicated AMJ editorial team for their exceptional work in reviewing manuscripts, managing publications, and providing timely feedback to authors.

We extend our heartfelt thanks to our editorial board, whose unwavering support since the journal's inception has been vital to its growth. Special appreciation goes to our peer reviewers, whose dedication ensures that each article meets our high standards of scientific integrity and excellence.

AMJ was founded to support early-career researchers and authors from developing countries, helping them navigate the complexities of academic publishing. We remain committed to this mission while celebrating the growing number of submissions from esteemed researchers worldwide, including Tunisia, Saudi Arabia, and the India—demonstrating our continued dedication to quality.

As we look to the future, we invite you to join our team of reviewers or recommend colleagues. We also encourage you to submit your research to AMJ and share the journal as a trusted platform.

For any questions, please contact the AMJ editorial team.

Sincerely,

Rick Steves

Managing Editor

Australasian Medical Journal